PASPA prohibited states from sponsoring, operating, advertising, promoting, licensing, or authorizing betting schemes based on competitive sporting events. For example, New Jersey, which brought the suit challenging PASPA, has a 2014 law authorizing sports betting in casinos, licensed racetracks, and former racetracks.

With PASPA no longer on the books, Pennsylvania is free to allow sports betting in the state.

I think it is the debt.

And when you are talking about debt, then the debt is the debt.

I think the debt is the debt.

I mean the debt. It is the debt.

And I don't mean the debt.

I think the debt is the debt.

I think it is the debt.

But I am just saying that I think the debt is the debt.
