The problem is, though, as of this writing, about half of Visa and Mastercard transactions are declined because the credit card issuers, including many large banks, simply won't process gambling transactions, according to Gambling.com.

"The bigger banks generally do not accept online gaming," Ambrogio says.

What if your card is declined?

One workaround: Some gamblers use a credit card to fund a digital wallet, such as PayPal, and use that to pay for bets.

No grace period: If you typically pay your balance in full every month, you have a credit card grace period of at least 21 days to pay off your purchase before you're charged interest.

It varies widely by state.

We talk about the opportunities we have to win.
